Permaculture Design Certificate Course

This certificate certifies the barer has completed a full Permaculture Design Certificate course, an internationally recognised qualification, based on the ethics principles and design tools of permaculture

This involves a minimum of 72 hours of study, following a set curriculum based on the Permaculture Designers Manual by Bill Mollison.

Those completing this course are registered as permaculture graduates with the Permaculture Association of Britain, the national educational charity supporting permaculture in the UK.

Lead tutor Steven Jones BA (hons) PGCE, Dip Perm Des is the director of Sector39 permaculture and is a fully qualified teacher of business studies and economics as well as permaculture design.

Sector39 is based in Wales UK and has been practising permaculture design since 1992.
Sector39 have been delivering permaculture courses since 2005 and was registered formally as company number 09001792 in 2014

Permaculture is a design system to create genuinely regenerative and sustainable outcomes. Completion of the course includes theory and practical work into the principles of ecology and a practical understanding of natural systems.

Permaculture is a design system for sustainability and participants work on a real-life design example and are required to present their design ideas to a group of their peers as part of the conclusion of the course.
A PDC is designed to turn ideas into action, to give insight and experience as well joining people into mutually supportive networks
